

Change Magazine is Pleased to Offer CCAS Members a Special Subscription Rate!

Change is a magazine that deals with contemporary issues in higher education. It spotlights trends; provides new insights and ideas; and analyzes the implications of programs, policies, and practices. Change is intended for reflective practitioners in colleges, universities, corporations, government, and elsewhere. Over the past few years Change has included articles on:

- trendsetting institutions, programs, projects, and individuals
- the latest thinking on teaching and learning
- technology
- assessment of student learning
- the financing and management of higher education
- for-profit and entrepreneurial higher education
- faculty
- STEM education
- the undergraduate experience
- administrative practice and governance
- public policy
- accountability
- global postsecondary trends
- the social role of higher education

Change, which is published six times a year, is intended for individuals responsible for higher learning in college, university, and other settings, including faculty, administrators, trustees, state and federal officials, and students, as well as corporation, union, and foundation officers.
